

What choices will you make as an author?

- Imagine writing is like going a road trip, sometimes you know which way you are going, sometimes you get lost and sometimes you have to go back and try a different way. . Sometimes you even revisit a spot more than once.
- Plan what you think your writing trip will look like. You can create a writer's map of the order you think your trip will go in.
- As you write, revisit your plan and see if you had to make changes along the trip. Think about how would explain any changes to another author who wanted to go on a writing trip.
- These are the places (or choices) you need to go to on your trip

Drafting

Planning

Reflecting

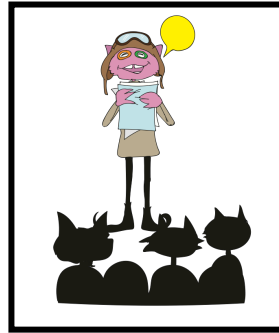

Teacher conference

Purpose

Peer conference

Presenting

Revising

Audience

My writing trip

